The School, ★

so dear to my heart . . .

I always enjoyed that pre-school leisure . . .

My city wasn't exactly New York, but it had a glamour all its own, especially at Christmas . . .

There were those who were outstanding at G. W., just as at other schools.

Here are some of them:

Seated: Brantley Barr, American Legion Award; John Heard, Editor of CAVALIER; Connie Diggs, Editor of Chatterbox; Preston Purdum, American Legion Award; Allen Greenberg, President of Senior Class.

THE SCHOOL AND I

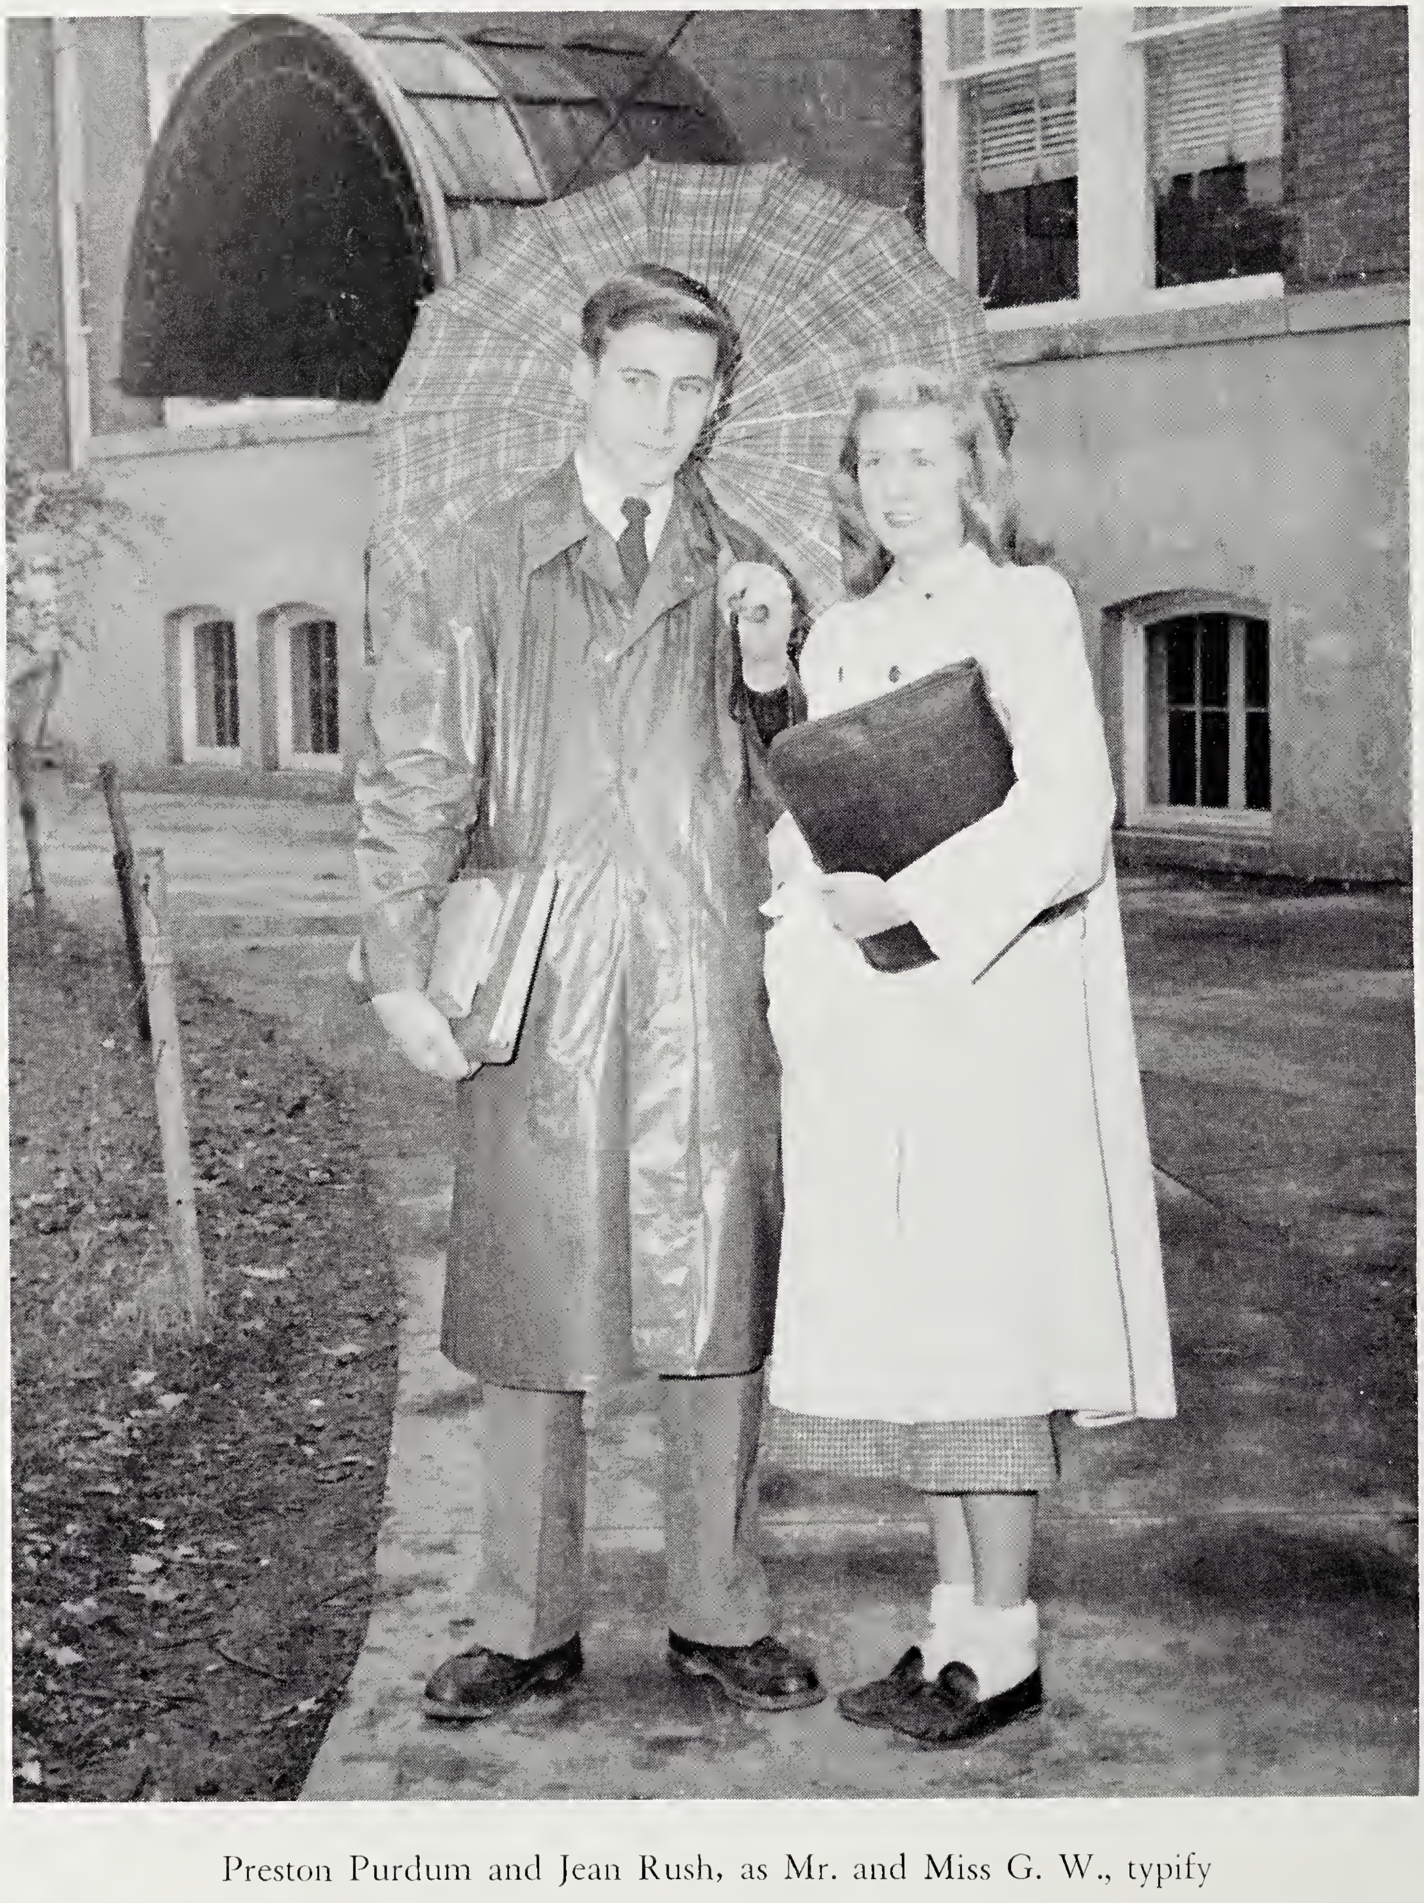
At the beginning of our Senior year a sparkling new world of opportunity opened; to us a new era was born. Not only did we possess the coveted position of Seniors, but new horizons and visions of things to come stirred our hearts. The peak of high school life attained, we eagerly sought to capture the spirit of G. W. with all its vivid meaning, recording it within these pages for all to see.

Cavaliers

Protected by the stars and stripes . . .

In the heart of the seat of learning . . .

A familiar figure in the library is Mrs. Lola H. Wicker, who has served well her post for the past thirteen years. Behind the scenes, she spends the day mending and stamping G. W.'s books, and preparing the new volumes for circulation.



Preston Purdum and Jean Rush, as Mr. and Miss G. W., typify the happy spirit of the average G. W.-ite.

We've got the coach;
We've got the team;
We've got the pep;
We've got the steam!

All of us like him . . .

Tagged by students as an ideal teacher and friend, Mr. Motley is loved by all for his gentle and tactful nature and his constant readiness to help others. Our years at G. W. have been enlivened by his presence, his frank and sincere way of speaking, and his wit, which is the spark plug of all his discussions. It is to him that we dedicate our CAVALIER of 1949.

Can we forget the joys we've known,
Or friends we've made so dear?
The halls, each room, they add so much
To our fond memories here.

It wasn't always easy . . .

Our office was expertly managed by Mrs. Virginia Fentriss, assistant secretary, and Miss Elizabeth Copeland, secretary. The clock in the background also played a major role in my daily school life, for it was the one that timed those longed-for bells . . .

I got the works from . . .

The general office was quite a popular place, especially in the early morning . . .

SINGING AMERICA

Walking up the long walk to G. W.'s front door and scanning the news on the bulletin board constitute an early morning ritual of the teachers . . .

A certain fashion, that is!

Adding more beauty to G. W.'s campus are these teachers who like sunshine and smiles with their school day . .

Here are scenes showing the social side of our teachers' lives. Outstanding among their festive activities are the two annual faculty parties, often held at Wildwood . . .

A faculty party added to the fun . . .

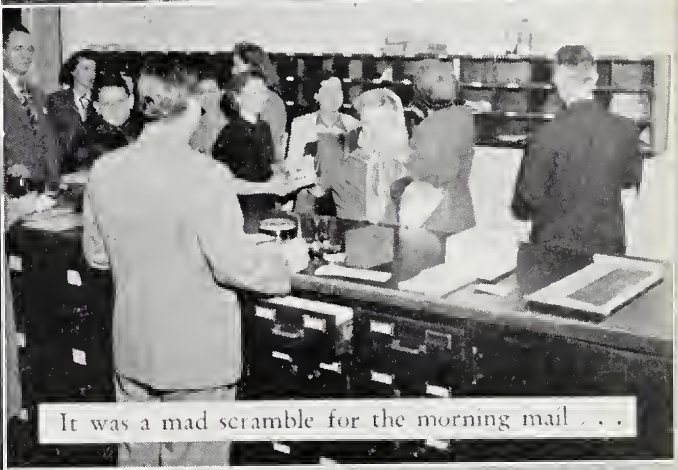
Line forms to the right . . .

Teachers had their off moments . . .

Afternoons were pleasant times . . .

Was that food good! . . .

"Are you going downtown? . . .



It was a mad scramble for the morning mail . . .

Is that the fifth piece, Chris? . . .

"The Big Three" often met in the main hall . . .

Like my Easter outfit? . . .

The storms they came, the winds they blew,
It mattered not the weather—
Our loyal teachers saw us through,
"The School and I"—together.

The things they guided me into . . .

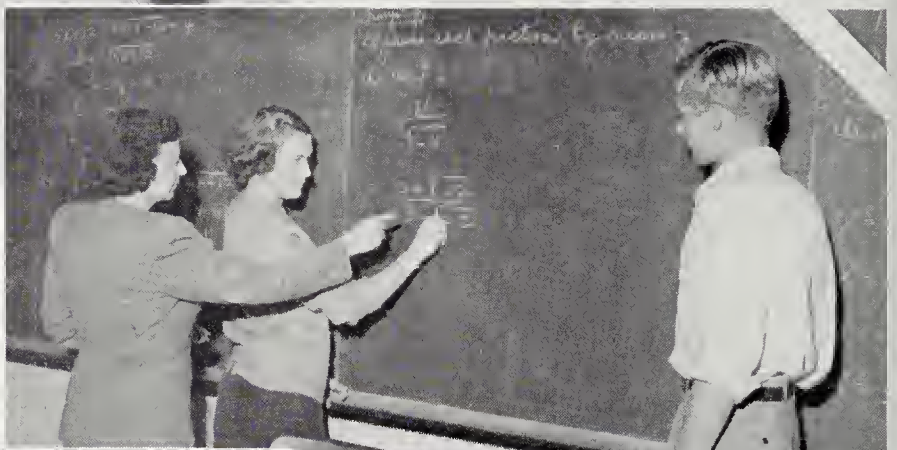
C. L. SHANER

Blackboards came in useful for Mrs. Davis, while I had only a sheet of paper . . .

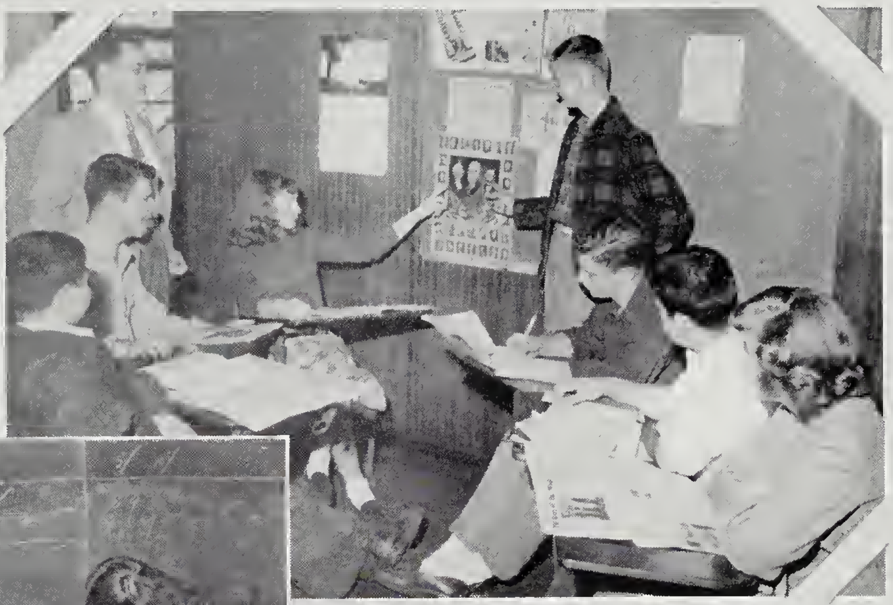


"Now first remove the minus from the radical," admonished Miss Naylor . . .

Mr. Wilson often found my "long marks" amusing, but it was no laughing matter to me.

Mrs. Barker and Mr. Wells were there to forestall the dangers of an explosion . . .

My face (Mr. Dudenhausen's too) was as red as Mr. Gallup's—in the upset of '48!



How could I make that account balance with Miss Alston so close?

It seemed that Miss Matthews expected me to write one hundred words a minute . . .

"I'll bite," I said, "What are they, Mr. Jones?" . . .

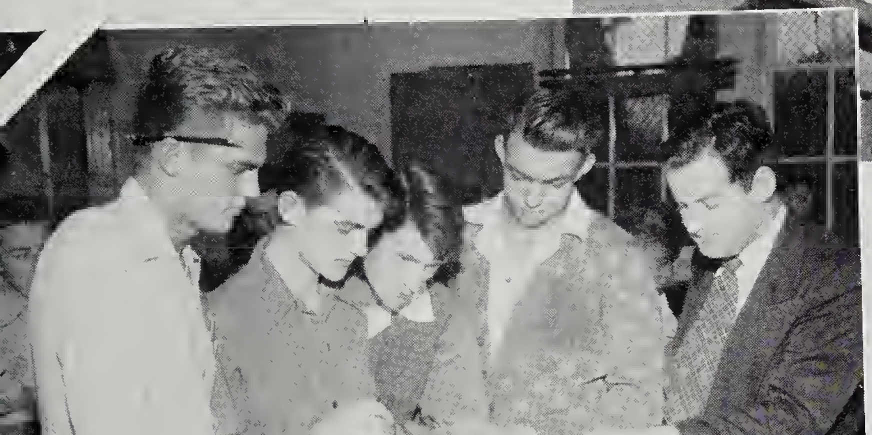
I even made myself a new frock in this bright room, with Mrs. Moseley . . .

Would I be a printer? Mr. Van Oot seemed to have just such notions . .

Or a cabinet maker? Mr. Bacon looked over my work with a critical eye . . .

Sometimes I had the queerest feeling that Miss Coppedge was looking over my shoulder . . .

Mrs. Hill always had the faculty of arousing that journalistic approach . . .



"Nope, your perspective is bad," Mr. Grau pointed out in his brisk, cheery manner . . .

Under Mr. Ellis's friendly supervision, I was taught to smile while "public speaking."

STUDENT COUNCIL

This governing body, the Student Council, was made up of a representative from each homeroom. They were headed by Buddy Barker, president; Mary Denny Wilson, vice-president; and Bernice Wyatt, secretary-treasurer. The organization, considered one of the best in the state, was active in leading various school projects. Among these was the annual Community Chest Drive, which went over the top this year. Recommendations for improvements in the school grounds, buildings, and welfare of the students were made at their regular meetings, then later presented to the student body. In November a convention was held in Richmond, attended by Bernice Wyatt, Mary Denny Wilson, Mary Catherine Myers, Jane Schoolfield, Buddy Barker, and Mrs. Ruby Vernon, faculty adviser. The following week Buddy Barker, Clay T. Gardner, Davis Hamlin, and Tommy Collie, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Baxa, attended the annual meeting of the Student Council Association in Mobile, Alabama.

The Chatterbox . . .

An outstanding publication since its founding in 1922, the Chatterbox, now a bi-weekly, has been characteristic of the sensibilities of the school. Under Mrs. Hill's guidance it has livened interest, spread its fame, and caught the attention of all the students by its wide-awake policies. The annual Easter Bunny Girl Contest, High School Day at Herman's, Press Club Play, and assembly, which this year depicted the value of spreading news, represent a few of its originalities.

Among the laurels which the Chatterbox has won are the Medalist rating from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, Pacemaker rating from the National Scholastic Press Association, International Honor rating from Quill and Scroll, and first place trophy rating from the Southern Inter-Scholastic Press Association. Thus has our High School paper proved its worth, and every student looks forward with great eagerness to the Friday afternoons it's distributed.

To spark the subscription drive, The Chatterbox presented to the students in assembly an animated edition of its symbol, the Green Duck. G.W.'s feathered friend explained with illustrations that if Cleopatra could have read The Chatterbox, she would not have been deceived by her adoring admirers.

No less necessary was the presence of the Green Duck at Herman's on High School Day at that store. Waddling up and down the aisles in ducky fashion, the attractive creature steps up the sales spirit—and The Chatterbox reaps results.

He brings us good luck . . .

They strive to make the deadline . . .

The press room held much of interest for us G.W.-ites. Here we gathered many a savory morsel, read many a weary line, and hearkened unto many a swift and pointed reminder from Mrs. Hill.

Our staff captures the G. W. spirit . . .

A beloved publication at G. W. is the CAVALIER, our yearbook, which depicts the activities of the school, the close relation of the school with the city, and which preserves forever memories of our glorious high school days. While this is only a yearly publication, much hard work and co-operation go into its making. And these efforts have not been in vain, for, under the supervision and sponsorship of Miss Dodson, the CAVALIER has had conferred upon it many honors, among which are the first-place rating of the Southern Interscholastic Press Association, the title of "distinguished" in the state, and first-class honor rating from the National Scholastic Press Association. The '48 book was a trophy winner.

For the betterment of their financial status, the CAVALIER staff waged a subscription campaign, a faculty versus student basketball game, and a skating party at a local roller rink. Also given was an assembly program, which contained a Macbeth witch scene.

This lively and cooperative spirit prevailing throughout the year, the CAVALIER staff successfully managed, compiled, wrote, edited, and financed the annual which each year grows better, 1949 no exception.

Smile sweetly, Jean . . .

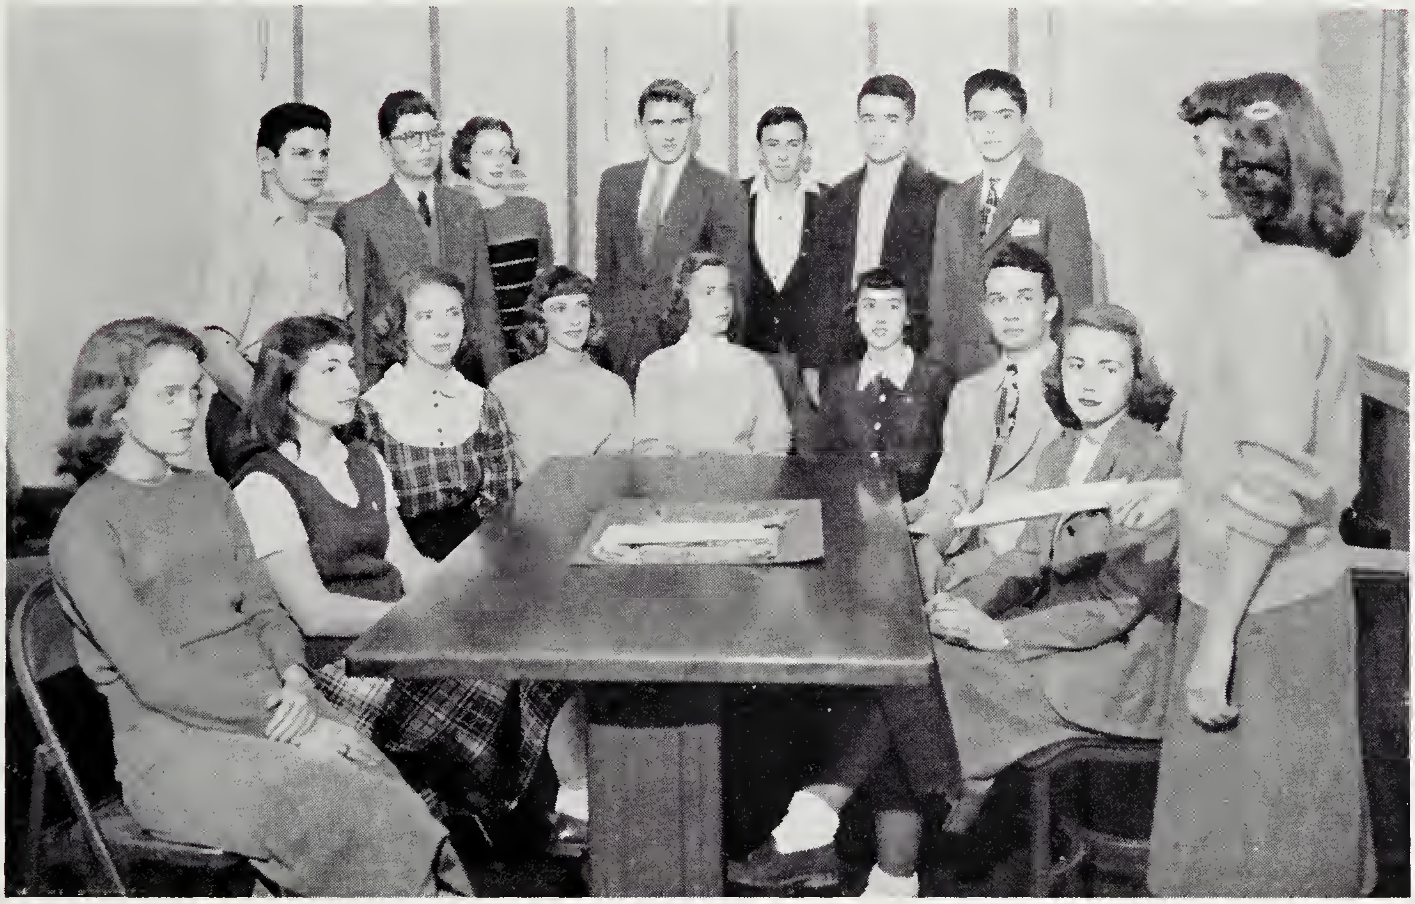
NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Here are our "brain-trusts" and, of course, some of our most versatile students. Only Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors are eligible to join this organization, which is directed by Mrs. Margaret Motley. To become a member of the National Honor Society more is required than just an average of 90 or above. Students must also be approved by a faculty committee and must have demonstrated outstanding qualities of leadership, service, and character. They are not an all-work-and-no-play group, for these students look forward to their traditional picnic held each spring. Last year a chicken fry was all the Honor Society needed as a spur toward better grades.

Here are our journalists extraordinary . . .



Seated: Jean Farley, Frieda Kahn, Margaret Ann Choate, Nancy Fox, Jane Schoolfield, Nancy Purdum, Homer Bass, Nancy Carter.

Standing: Julian Koplen, Albert Kahn, Celeste Bishop, John Heard, Jack Scism, Bentz Howard, Brantley Barr, Connie Diggs.

Outstanding achievement in some field of journalistic work has been attained by each of these students, who make up G. W.'s Quill and Scroll. Chosen by the faculty sponsor of the publication for which they work, these student journalists must rank in the upper third of their class. They also must be Juniors or Seniors at the time of their election.

The George Washington chapter, co-sponsored by Mrs. Nora Payne Hill and Miss Ethel M. Dodson, is a member of the national organization, an honorary society of student journalists.

A feature all the students look forward to in this local chapter is the initiation, usually held in Mrs. Hill's apartment.

SPANISH CLUB

These gay Senors and Senoritas, besides studying the Spanish language, listening to native speakers, and learning of customs from Spanish records, often took time out for fiestas. Señorita Cooke made the class interesting all right. She read to the class from Spanish newspapers, referred to romantic tales and adventurous history of Spain, and had the group singing Spanish songs. Thus, fun and work were combined just as it is done in old España.

FRENCH CLUB

Anyone of "La Fleur-de-Lis" will tell you that French is quite interesting and lots of fun—but could it be otherwise with such wonderful programs as skits, performed en français, French songs, a study of French customs, history, food, symbols, the National Anthem, and the Fleur-de-Lis? The club invited some native Frenchmen to speak to them, and also the members took great interest in the France-Amerique newspaper.

Among the shelves they toil . . .

LIBRARY ASSISTANTS

Very competent help is given Miss Lucy Fitzgerald by these volunteer assistants. They check out books, return them to the shelves, and help students find material they want. Besides being a great aid to the library, the girls gain practical experience in this kind of work.

LITERARY CONTESTANTS

Some of these industrious students made the grade in competition to represent G. W. in the state literary events. The lucky G. W.-ites competed in public speaking, prose reading, poetry reading, spelling and debating meets sponsored by the Virginia Athletic and Literary League. Last year G. W. took top honors when Jean Dyer won first place in the state for her prose reading and Pat Furgurson for his spelling.

These science enthusiasts at their very informal biweekly meetings discussed, under the leadership of Mr. Thomasson, anything from Einstein's theories to hypnosis. Since the Forum was not organized as a club, anyone interested in science could attend. The meetings, held usually in students' homes, were enlivened not only by "weighty" discussions, but by refreshments as well.

To arouse a more lively interest in reading for both educational and enjoyable purposes, the Literary Club was formed again after a lapse of several years. Meetings were held once a month with interesting and varied programs presented. Alice Hyden Merritt, a Danville Negro woman, whose book of poetry was recently published, was one of the most outstanding speakers. In the spring a tea was held for all old and new members. Financed through dues, books were bought and presented to the library as a gift from the Literary Club.

We broadcast—suggest improvements . . .

To keep Danville citizens informed regarding school activities, this "G. W. on the air" group broadcast at monthly intervals over WBTM. Conversational and lively, these half-hour performances represented as nearly as possible every department of the school, bringing out in an informal manner just what was news at G. W. Sponsors Ellis and Dudenhausen deserved much credit for rounding up enjoyable programs which were popular with the students as well as their parents.

"I think this shrubbery needs attention," says Sponsor Christopher as he and the 1948 Washingtonians tour the school grounds. All out for G. W., this school-spirited group has definite ideas concerning not only an attractive, well-kept environment for the students, but also a healthful moral atmosphere. When unfair practices are observed, the boys, upholding the integrity of the school, go to bat. They are proud of the fact that theirs is the only club in school sponsored by the principal.

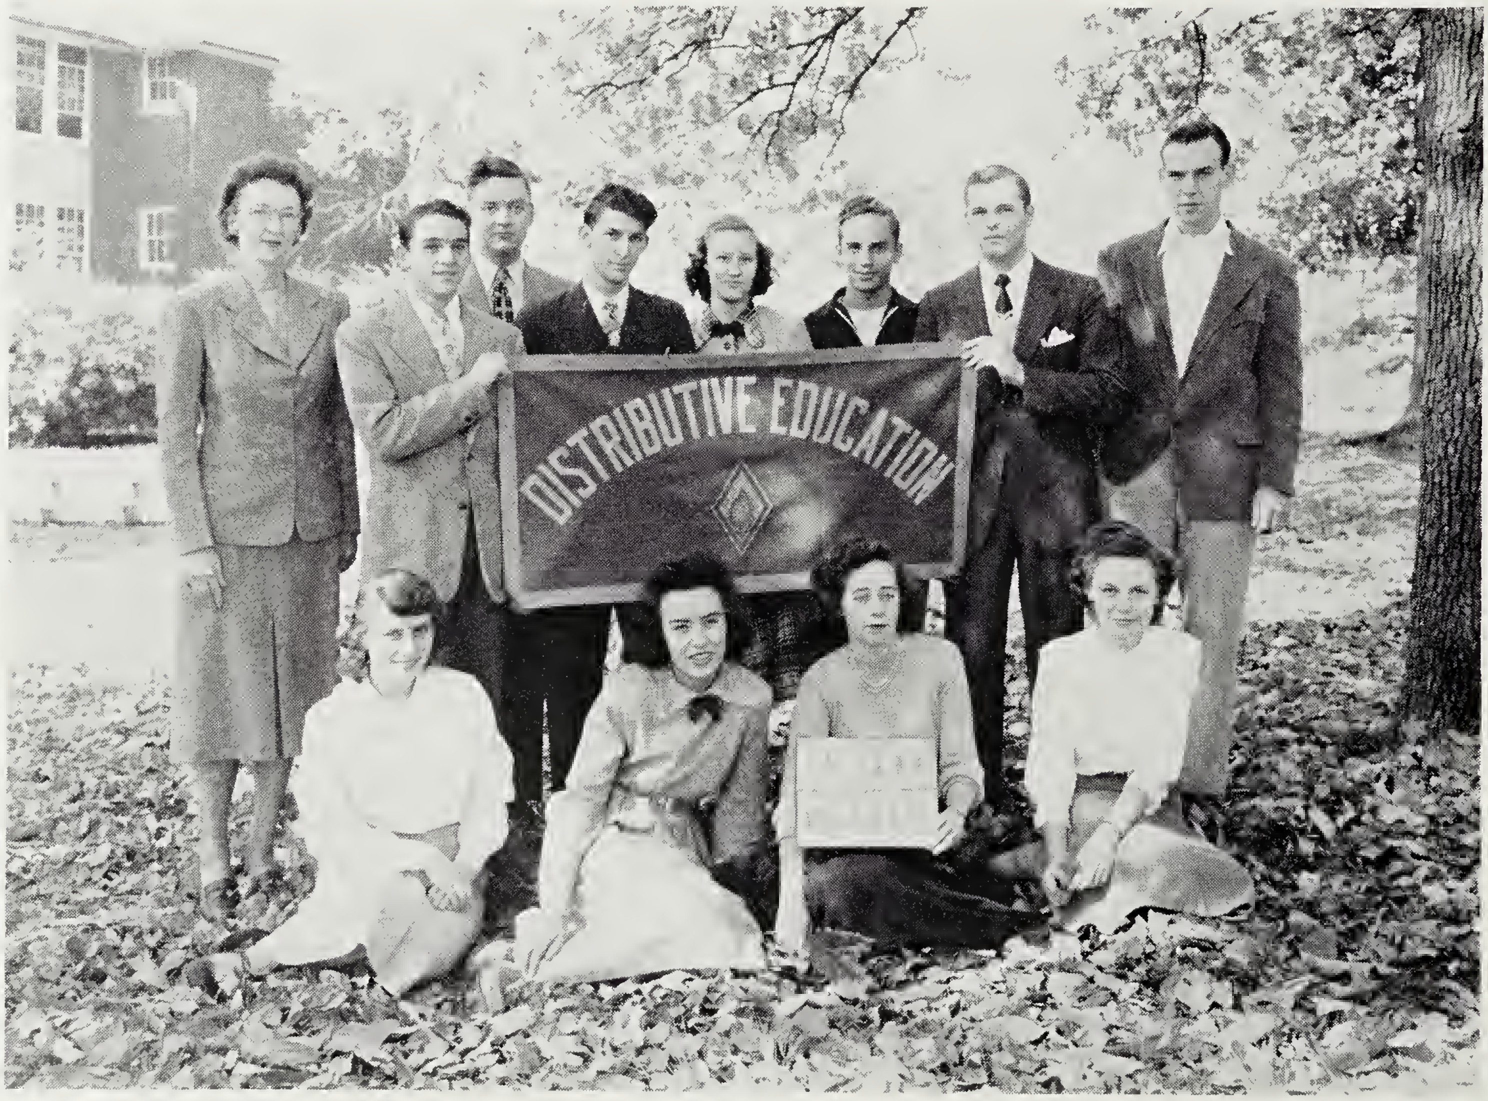
We earn while we learn . . .

This year, the Distributors Club brought new honors to G. W. H. S. It was awarded a "Superior Club" certificate by the Associated Distributors Clubs of Virginia, and club president, Bob Gravely, was elected associate vice-president of the state organization.

Among the group's activities recognized in the superior rating were a membership drive, an Employer-Employee Banquet, sponsorship of an area convention for Distributors Clubs, vocational programs featuring outside speakers, social meetings for members and second prize in a state poster contest.

Active members of the organization are all D. E. students. Associate members are elected from the student body and must be employed in local stores on a part-time basis. There are twelve active and fifty-four associate members.

In addition to the president, club officers are: Florence Westbrooks, vice-president; Inez Blackwell, secretary; Jean Miller, treasurer; James Ingram, parliamentarian; and James Baccary, editor-promotion manager. Club sponsor is Miss Mary V. Marks.



First row: A. Aron, F. Westbrook, I. Blackwell, J. Miller. Second row: Miss Mary V. Marks, J. Ingram, E. C. Moon, J. Baccary, B. Francis, R. Alverson, R. Gravely, P. Long. George Sanborn was absent when picture was taken.

Outstanding for their traits of scholarship, character, and leadership in the school, these nine girls were chosen by Principal J. T. Christopher, each to represent her particular field as a Junior Business and Professional Woman. They attended monthly meetings of the club and were excellent "ambassadors" for George Washington. The meetings proved to be quite valuable, revealing to them just how necessary it is to be efficient business women and at the same time alert American citizens.

As Mr. Baxa stands ready to support any suggestions, Mr. Christopher gives tips to these future business men, who are representative of the varied activities of the school. Also, they are outstanding in scholarship, character, and leadership. They were Junior Rotarians, chosen by the principal from the Senior Class to attend the monthly meetings of the Danville Rotary Club, one Senior being present at each meeting. These boys were very much impressed by the excellent programs of civic affairs—and by the delicious lunches.

Major Stokeley Fulton, Peggy Upchurch, Captain Russell Keck, Pat Yeatts.

I drilled and drilled . .

To give the members training, teach them respect for officers and a general understanding of military life are the main objectives of the corps, which is under the supervision of Coach Vaughn C. Woodall. Besides drilling and engaging in mock battles, the boys also gain experience in guard duty. During the two lunch periods guards are posted to close off areas in which classes are in session.

The highlights of the year's activities are the maneuvers held at Park Springs and the Country Club. It is on these maneuvers that the boys get some practical training in "rugged" Army life.

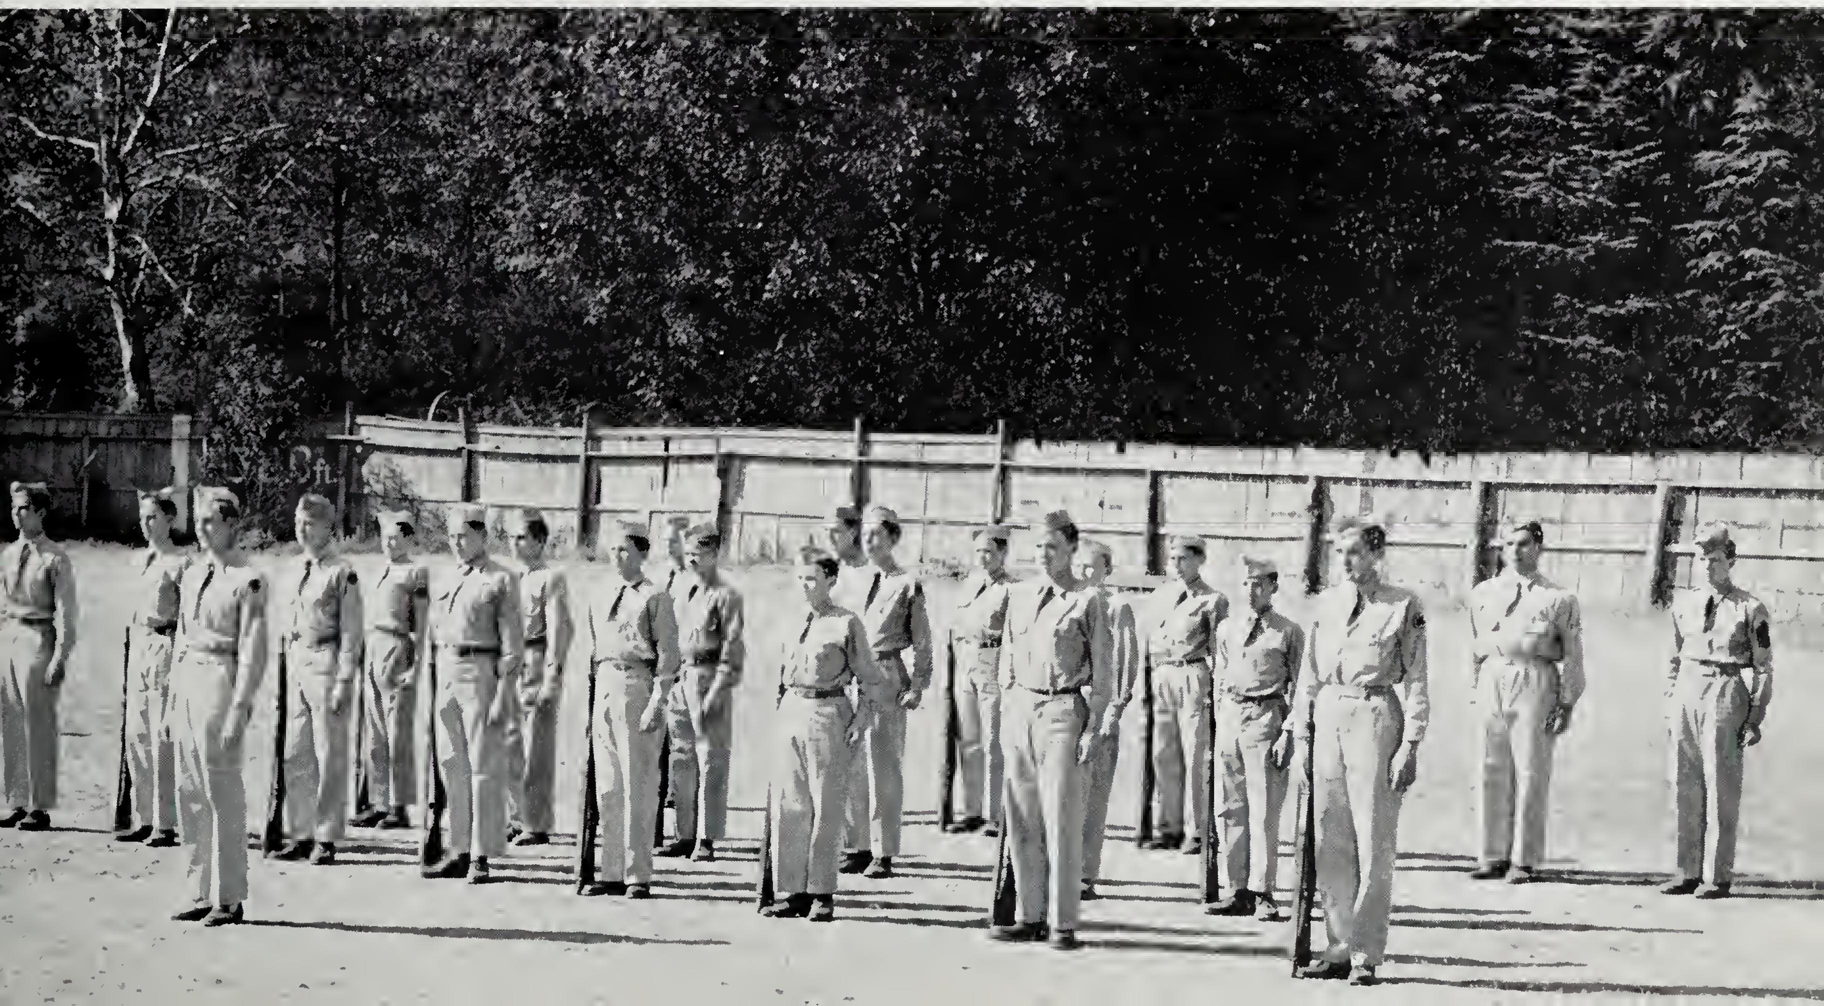
Another of the anxiously anticipated events of the year is the selection of sponsors by the "brass-hats". Each year the girls look forward to the prospect of having their pictures appear by their military friends.

Slick Williams, Bentz Howard, Russell Keck, Coach Vaughn C. Woodall, Stokeley Fulton, Vic Millner, Leonard Scruggs.

BATTALION PLANNING BOARD

To the Military Corps these leaders are essential. They plan and direct the yearly activities of the battalion, such as maneuvers and competition. Also they do a very good job of keeping the members busy by closely observing the daily routine.

But still remain a private . . .



I was happy as a Y-Teen

A brand new Council with a brand new schedule! This team of fun-makers, headed by Bobby and Jean, were chosen by popular vote at Open House to keep the "Y" dances rolling along in good style. The council-"men"-and-"women" look after such things as "yummy" refreshments, "solid" music, and "a slight contribution" at the door when each member strolls, lopes, or walks with dignity, into the "Y" gym for a Friday night of good fun.

Open to all girls of high school age, the Y.W.C.A. Clubs provide fun and entertainment throughout the year. The Amazon, Do-big, True Blue, and Friendship Clubs are made up of the younger students, who look forward to their Junior year when they become members of the Flotilla. Keeping in mind the development of the religious, social, and home life of the teen-age girl, directors of these clubs discuss such topics with them at their weekly meetings. Much to the satisfaction of the members, entertainment plays a most important role.

Believe it or not, some of these boys governed our State for a few days last year. On the lighter side, they had several gay parties and dances. The club, which is the high school branch of the Y. M. C. A., aspires to develop higher ideals in the fields of religion, sportsmanship, and morals among the boys of the school and the community.

These shutter-bugs always enjoyed their lessons on the use of the camera. Mr. Thomasson, an enthusiastic amateur himself, is sponsor of the Photography Club, which meets once a month. Meetings, planned and carried out by the members, are both educational and entertaining. With a well-equipped darkroom at their disposal they spend many enjoyable hours, turning out interesting photos. Increasing interest among the junior highs finally brought about the founding of a Junior Photography Club, a special project of these enthusiasts.

The art students have certainly been busy around school this year. They have drawn posters for every thing from "Hansel and Gretel" to Cavalier advertisements, made cuts for the Chatterbox, exhibits for the hall, also for the art room. For the regular curriculum, these young Raphaels, after starting with pencils, worked up to oils. Such things as still-life studies and landscapes were attempted by the artists. Last year's Cavalier was dedicated to their instructor, Miss Walton.

I really Love my school . . .

"Yes, we've been at G. W. for seven years! We're proud of it," was the serious refrain from this all-male division. It's just that these boys couldn't bear the thought of leaving after only six years. Needless to say this group of characters added a great deal to the spirit of fun at the school. They were useful too. Even now I can imagine Richard at the door. "Announcement!" he would call out briskly. "There'll be a pep meeting this afternoon at 3:15. The game at League Park has not been called off." Everybody would take on new life at such a thrilling reminder.

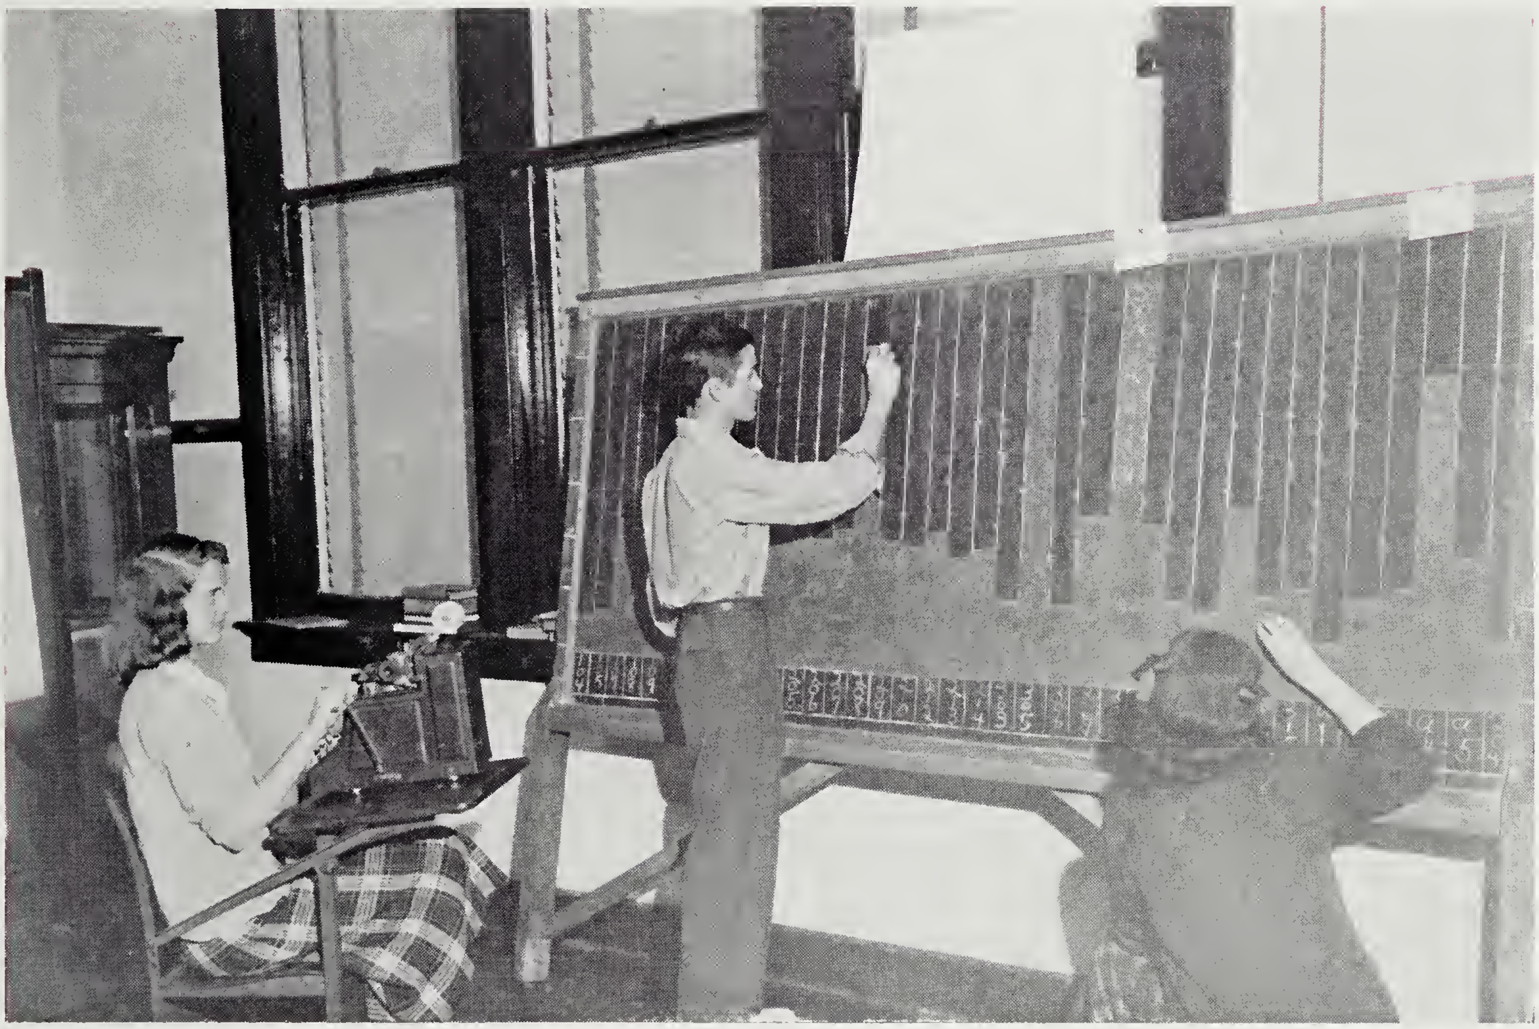
As a subdivision of the national Future Homemakers of America organization, the G. W. branch plays an active part. Laura Ann Jones, who was the president of the G. W. chapter this year, was secretary of the District Federation in '48. Pins are awarded first year members for their activities in the club. After receiving their F. H. A. guards at the end of the second year, the girls become eligible to work for degrees of membership. Among their many activities last year were filling Thanksgiving baskets, studying parliamentary procedure, and holding a mother-daughter tea.

G. W. was a generous contributor . . .



G. W. always participates in the community affairs, the Community Chest being no exception. As a reward for the great interest and competitive spirit shown by the homerooms, highest donors from Senior and Junior High classes received theater passes. The winners this year were Homerooms 308, and A-4. Pictured here are Buddy Barker and Bernice Wyatt marking the scores of the results in this year's contribution. Mary Denny Wilson is busy seeing that it tallies with her figures.

Other drives in which G. W. participated were the March of Dimes to help infantile paralysis victims, Christmas packages for hospitalized veterans at Roanoke, and the Red Cross. Citizens were, actually carrying on major projects in our great U. S. A. So proud were we of the fact that it was no uncommon sight to see posted on the door windows: "We gave 100%."

This theater-minded group, under the capable leadership of Miss Dorothy Fitzgerald, staged many productions of various types during the school year. Stagecraft committees, costumers, general managers, and players, all combined to make "drama" life at G. W. practical and interesting, as well as highly entertaining.

Those students who make contributions to dramatics, whether in actual performance or stagecraft, are rewarded with a membership to the Thespians Club, which is a national dramatic honor fraternity for high school students. Those in the upper picture have passed the requirements.

With excellent results . . .

Minor Miracle was G. W.'s prize-winning play in the spring of '48. That was once the state judges agreed with us, that Miss Fitzgerald's productions are tops. Here are shown the four who made up the entire cast: Bill Evans, Sam Adams, Buddy Barker, and Ed Henderson.

Almost Eighteen was the first play to be presented this year, and was very popular. It was an hilarious comedy, starring Buddy Barker as confused Eddie Barry, who, "almost eighteen," had such a complicated life. In the opposite picture are Eddie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barry, as portrayed by Harry McFarling and Barbara Torrence.

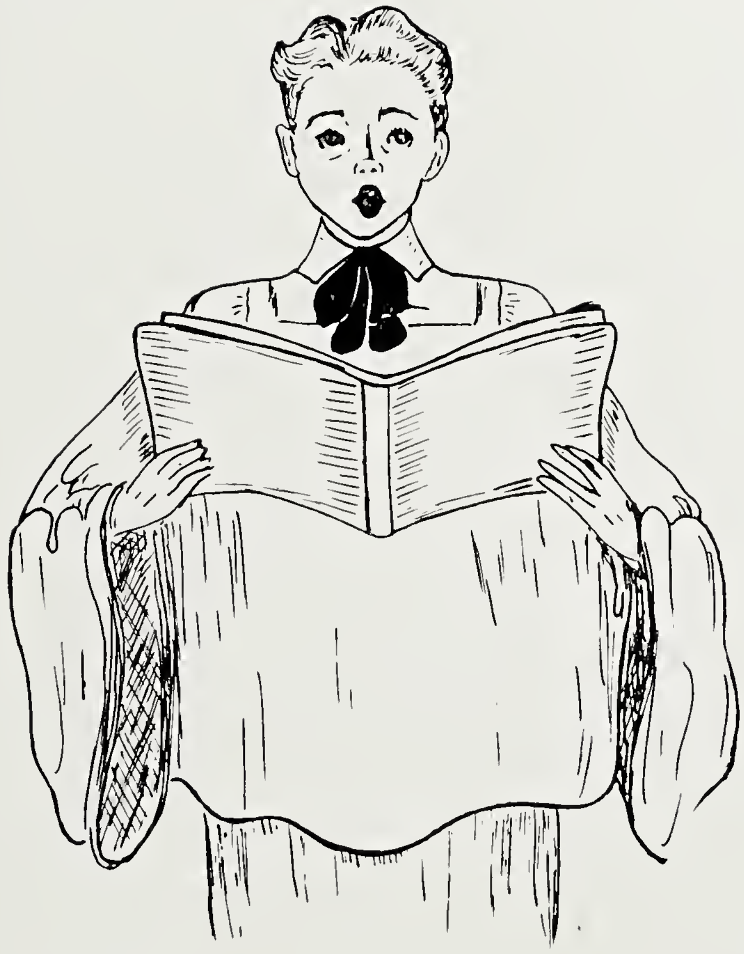
●

Our annual Christmas play, The Miracle of the Castle, which depicts luxurious living in a medieval castle, was presented again this year at the City Auditorium. Although this production, on the whole, had been re-cast (the leading parts, Lady Gwendolyn and Lord Gilbert, Barbara Torrence, and Harry McFarling) the Dramatics Club and the Glee Club worked together to make the performance a greater success than it was the preceding year.

●

(When the Annual went to press, the Senior and Press Club plays had not been chosen.)

It wasn't all just work you know;
There was a bright side to it.
It's positive these pictures show,
"The school and I"—we knew it.



With a song in my heart . . .

Our voices were as one . . .

The Glee Club has grown in membership this year as well as in activities. For the first time since its organization, an operetta, "Hansel and Gretel," taken from E. Humperdinck's opera, was presented to the school and to the public. This project was well received, giving urge to an annual presentation of its kind.

In the Christmas play, "Miracle of the Castle," the Glee Club again appeared, being cast as lords and ladies, as well as villagers. They added to the color of the play by singing carols and songs of that era.

More of the club's activities are the State Contest (from which a high rating is always received), and accepting the many invitations extended by the various churches and civic clubs.

Sixty-four strong . . .

On numerous occasions, the Glee Club was called on to sing in assembly. The lower scene is a typical one during the Christmas season, in which the Glee Club members lead the student body in singing carols, holding their lighted candles in true traditional style.

MISS Elizabeth Oliver's love for music and her intense desire that young people love it as she does, are qualities that endear her to those who know and appreciate her work.

THIS year's officers of the Glee Club were June Stephens, president; June Blanks, vice-president; Mary Meade Robertson, secretary; E. C. Moon, treasurer (who was absent when the picture was taken), and Sam Elliott, social chairman.

HERE are some of the Glee Club boys who have a knack for construction and who volunteered to help with the scenery for the operetta — finished product on opposite page.

SEAMSTRESSES too were drawn from the musical group; those here are fitting the costumes of the "angels"—for the operetta, of course.

CHARLENE Lynch and Jeanne Nostrandt acted the title roles in "Hansel and Gretel", the operetta presented this year by the Glee Club. Smiling at visions of the cookie house, the children are unaware that the contriving witch, Mary Fralin, lurks nearby.

HANSEL and Gretel's parents, happy-go-lucky Peter, E. C. Moon, and their once dejected mother, Mary Sue Tate, are more cheerful now since father brought home a tremendous basket of food.

●

ONE of the loveliest scenes of the play, was the one in which the angels appeared. As they moved in graceful pantomime, the audience was amazed at their beauty.

●

"ALL Aboard" for the State Contest! Attended each year by glee clubs and musical groups from numerous schools throughout the state, the conventions are held at designated cities. Several selections are sung by each group, which is graded accordingly.

Suppose the way seems hard and long,
Suppose the way is weary,
Then sing we out one ringing song
With hardy hearts and cheery.

Our team had its ups and downs . . .

Beginning the season with the Missouri T-formation, Head Coach Vaughn C. Woodall had to change to the single wing because of the early loss of three backs. Five major injuries plus singularly strong opponents held the Redbirds' total to a mere two wins out of the ten games played.

For the first tilt the Redbirds journeyed to Reidsville, where they met with disaster. They lost 25-7, while swift-running back, Buck Keeton, broke his leg. George Haley scored for G. W. with Buster Brown converting successfully for the extra point.

Next came Roanoke's Jefferson Magicians who defeated the Cardinals 26-0 at League Park. On this occasion Co-captains H. B. Fowlkes, Jr. and Stokeley Fulton won recognition for outstanding defensive football.

The Cardinals knew their worst defeat of the season at Hopewell, with a score of 48-0. It was here that four blocked punts counted for four touchdowns.

18-0 victory. This was one of the hardest fought games of the season with the entire line showing a determined spirit to fight to the finish.

Next came the Cardinals' arch rival, Glass High of Lynchburg, who won over them by a score of 32-0.

Luck changed at last when the Redbirds defeated Morrison at League Park 9-0. Buster Brown scored and then followed with the conversion. Curly Wilmarth, co-captain elect, tackled a man behind the goal for a safety.

But success did not linger long. Washington-Lee of Arlington romped over the Cardinals with a score of 20-0 at Arlington. Fulton and Fowlkes were the line stars with Jerry Davis and Buster Brown sharing the backfield honors.

Of all the conference tilts the game with Salem was the hardest fought, but Salem won in the last two minutes of play, the score 6-0. This was the Homecoming game when Jean Farley reigned as Queen with Jean Rush and Anne Murphy, attending.

Schoolfield, District champions in Class B, suffered a 7-0 defeat by the Cardinals. Fleet-footed Allan Knick intercepted a pass on his own 15-yard line and raced eighty-five yards for a touchdown. Buster Brown again converted.

On Turkey Day the Cardinals traveled to Portsmouth where Stokeley Fulton and H. B. Fowlkes with superb line play held them to one touchdown. . . .

By popular vote of the boys receiving monograms, H. B. Fowlkes was presented the Capitol Theatre Trophy as the most valuable player of the year.

Later Stokeley Fulton won the coveted honor from the Class A coaches as guard on the 1948 All-State team for his outstanding defensive play throughout the season.

Members of the squad receiving monograms were Fred Martin, Gordon Woody, Curly Wilmarth, co-captain elect, Jimmy Masloff, Ed Wrenn, Fred Hundley, Bobby Parr, Stokeley Fulton, co-captain elect, Alvis Hardy, Hayes Thomas, H. B. Fowlkes, Jr., Allan Knick, Buster Brown, George Haley, Jerry Davis, Hugh Carson, Ernest White, Mills Rogers.

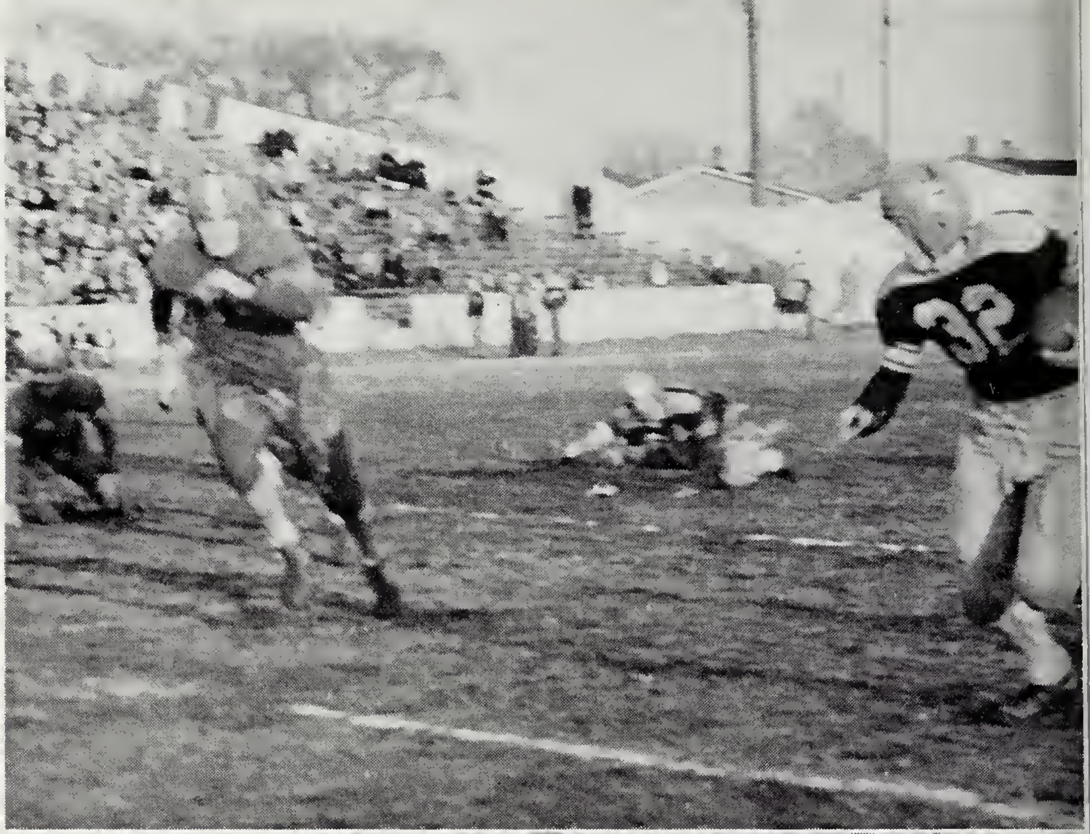
By vote of the football team, Stokeley Fulton and Curly Wilmarth were elected Co-Captains for the coming year.

The last game of the season found the Cardinals in Portsmouth for the annual Thanksgiving Day game and our photographer caught Allan Knick returning a punt for a forty-yard gain. Although playing on a muddy field, this was one of the finest games of the year.



Light-weight Jerry Davis (also at Portsmouth) was held back by this same mud, yet he is shown sweeping end for a nice gain. By playing their finest ball of the year, Co-Captains H. B. Fowlkes, Jr. and Stokeley Fulton won high honors for their defensive play.

Grand finale would be a proper name for Homecoming week at G. W. The gala event opens with a bonfire on the athletic field, followed by a mile-long parade the next morning. Keeping everyone in high spirits is the main duty of the cheerleaders.

Then the big moment arrives. The traditional game is played in League Park. At half-time the Queen and her attendants are presented to the spectators. Climaxing Homecoming week is the school's most popular dance, at which the Queen reigns. The school returns to normal pace the next week after an eventful celebration.

Our hoopers were on the ball!

The Cardinals really got off on the right foot by taking five straight victories, including one conference win over Salem. The sixth game provided the greatest upset of the local basketball season, as Schoolfield nosed out the highly favored Cards 51-50, but later gained sweet revenge from their arch-rivals by swamping them in the second game between the two teams, 66-34.

The Cardinals wound up the season with a record of twelve wins against six defeats. Their games included those with Schoolfield, Salem, Roanoke, Lynchburg, South Boston, Martinsville, Gretna, Averett, Hanes High of Winston-Salem, and the local D. T. I. Tech team.

Coach Al Mathes, beginning the season with only three lettermen, lost one of these, Fred Martin, to the Army midway of the campaign. Therefore the season record of the Cards should be considered outstanding and a tribute to Coach Mathes' coaching.

Captain Bill Smith was high scorer for the season, being closely followed by Bill Bolton. Both boys played outstanding ball during the entire campaign, and as a result Smith was voted the team's most valuable player, while Bolton was elected captain of next year's squad.

The players who are likely to receive letters as we go to press are Bill Smith, Bill Bolton, Avery Huff, Allen Greenberg, Richard Wells, Stokeley Fulton, Rufus Reynolds, Loyd Wilkinson, and Melvin Collins.

The National Athletic Scholarship Society for secondary schools is an honorary society composed of boys who have earned a letter in one of the four major sports. To be eligible for membership a boy must rank higher than the average student for three consecutive semesters and must have shown the highest type of sportsmanship. Purposes of the society are: to foster high scholarship among athletes, to elevate the ideals of sportsmanship, to stimulate a desire for balanced training, and to develop more outstanding leaders in secondary schools in the United States.

We have girl athletes too . . .

Beginning the season with a loss of four games, these Ladybirds gained experience and came through the rest of their crowded schedule with a winning team. It wasn't as easy as it sounds, however, because a winning team requires plenty of hard practice and a fighting spirit. With practice beginning early in the fall and a spirit that was never down, the girls had what it took.

Mary Ann Harper was a good choice for captain because of her expert ball-handling and outstanding leadership. Not to be overlooked were Mrs. Ingram and Miss Burton, the dependable coaches whose constant aim was to have a successful team.

Having played more games than the G. W. girls' team had for many years, their schedule included contests with South Boston, Martinsville, Gretna, Schoolfield, Phillip's Business College, Winston-Salem, Belk-Leggett Office Girls, and Averett College.

Third row: Coach "Lefty" Wilson; F. Hundley; O. Barber; R. Wells; L. Wilkinson; P. Furgurson; A. Greenberg; L. Fulton; and B. Dyer.

The return of Lefty Wilson to the coach's seat and the coming-through of four untried pitchers were the main factors that contributed to the success of the 1948 baseball team. The Cardinals ran up a record of eight wins and seven defeats. The Redbirds defeated Dan River High 2-1 in the opening game of the season. It was then Stokeley Fulton, converted from a third baseman to a pitcher, hurled a beautiful three-hit game, and as a result of his fine pitching and hitting during the rest of the season was voted by his teammates as the most valuable player. The Redbirds claimed two victories apiece over Dan River, Reidsville, and South Boston, split a two-game series with V.P.I. Extension and Schoolfield, dropped one game to Hargrave, and lost two conference tilts with Roanoke. The Jeffersonians came out on top by scores of 18-10 and 6-5. Monograms were awarded to fifteen of Coach Wilson's diamond performers: Bill Carter, Stokeley Fulton, Bill Dyer, Fred Evans, Richard Wells, Allan Knick, Billy Williams, Frank Fulton, Allen Greenberg, Pat Furgurson, Fred Hundley, Loyd Wilkinson, Otis Barber, Jerry Davis, and Chubby Carson.

And netmen play their part . . .

G. W.'s 1948 tennis team fought their way to the Virginia Group I finals only to be defeated by talent-laden Thomas Jefferson of Richmond. Coach Marion Wells headed the Card racqueteers and their loss to T. J. broke their two-year reign as "king of high school tennis" in Virginia. Bill Smith, Everett Carter, Bill Carson, Frank Turner, Carl Norburn and Howard Bolton held down the top six positions. George Snead teamed with Bolton in number three doubles.

For the third successive season the Redbirds copped the Western District crown without a loss. They trounced Lynchburg twice, 7-2 and 5-4, and defeated Roanoke in two close 5-4 matches. On May 7, Coach Well's netmen overpowered Maury of Norfolk 8-1 to reach the final round of the class A tourney. The next day T. J. eked out a 6-3 win over the Cardinals and thus annexed the Group I Championship.

Although G. W. failed to capture the team titles, Smith and Carter won the State Class A Doubles title the previous week by defeating representatives from Maury, T. J., and Suffolk. With only Smith and Snead returning from last year's Western District Champs, Al Mathes, who will coach the team this year, faces the problem of building from the ground up.

Wisdom and Youth

"Where is the key?" said the traveler,
Young and gallant and bold.
And he rapped with his sword at the guardsman
So wrinkled and bent and old.
"The key is my own," said the guardsman;
"And safe I think it would be
If such as thou comest, young master,
To open the gate o' the lea."
"But what is the price?" said the younger.
"My youth I have and my steed—"
"The price is the same and your courage
Will stand whenever you need."
"For your road is life," said the elder;
" 'Tis narrow and rocky and long,
But a goal of great worth shall await him
Who follows it through with a song."
"Then give me the key," said the traveler
And guided his steed on the way
Into the path of the sunlight
Into the light of the day.

—MARGARET CHOATE

We bid you luck, we bid you joy
And from this life's fair treasure
We pray that you will straightway find
Of happiness full measure.

My ambition is realized . . .

Senior Poem

Hark! What are the words I seem to hear,
That sound a meaning we all hold dear?
As an echo down from the past they came,
Calling each one in our class by name:

"Seniors, get ready for your crowning day;
It's here at last," it seems to say;
"You have bravely worked in the years that've passed;
You are ready to reap a reward at last."

We have labored long on the toilsome road,
And helped each other to bear the load;
We've come to the place we must bid adieu
To our teachers dear, and G. W., too!

As we face the dawn of another day,
The same old echo seems to say:
"Fight on, dear comrades. Be brave and true,
And win each battle that is left for you."

We hope that our class of 'forty-nine
Will live in the hearts of those behind;
May it inspire others, their best to do,
And to feel they are victors when their work is through.

By Esther Bernard.

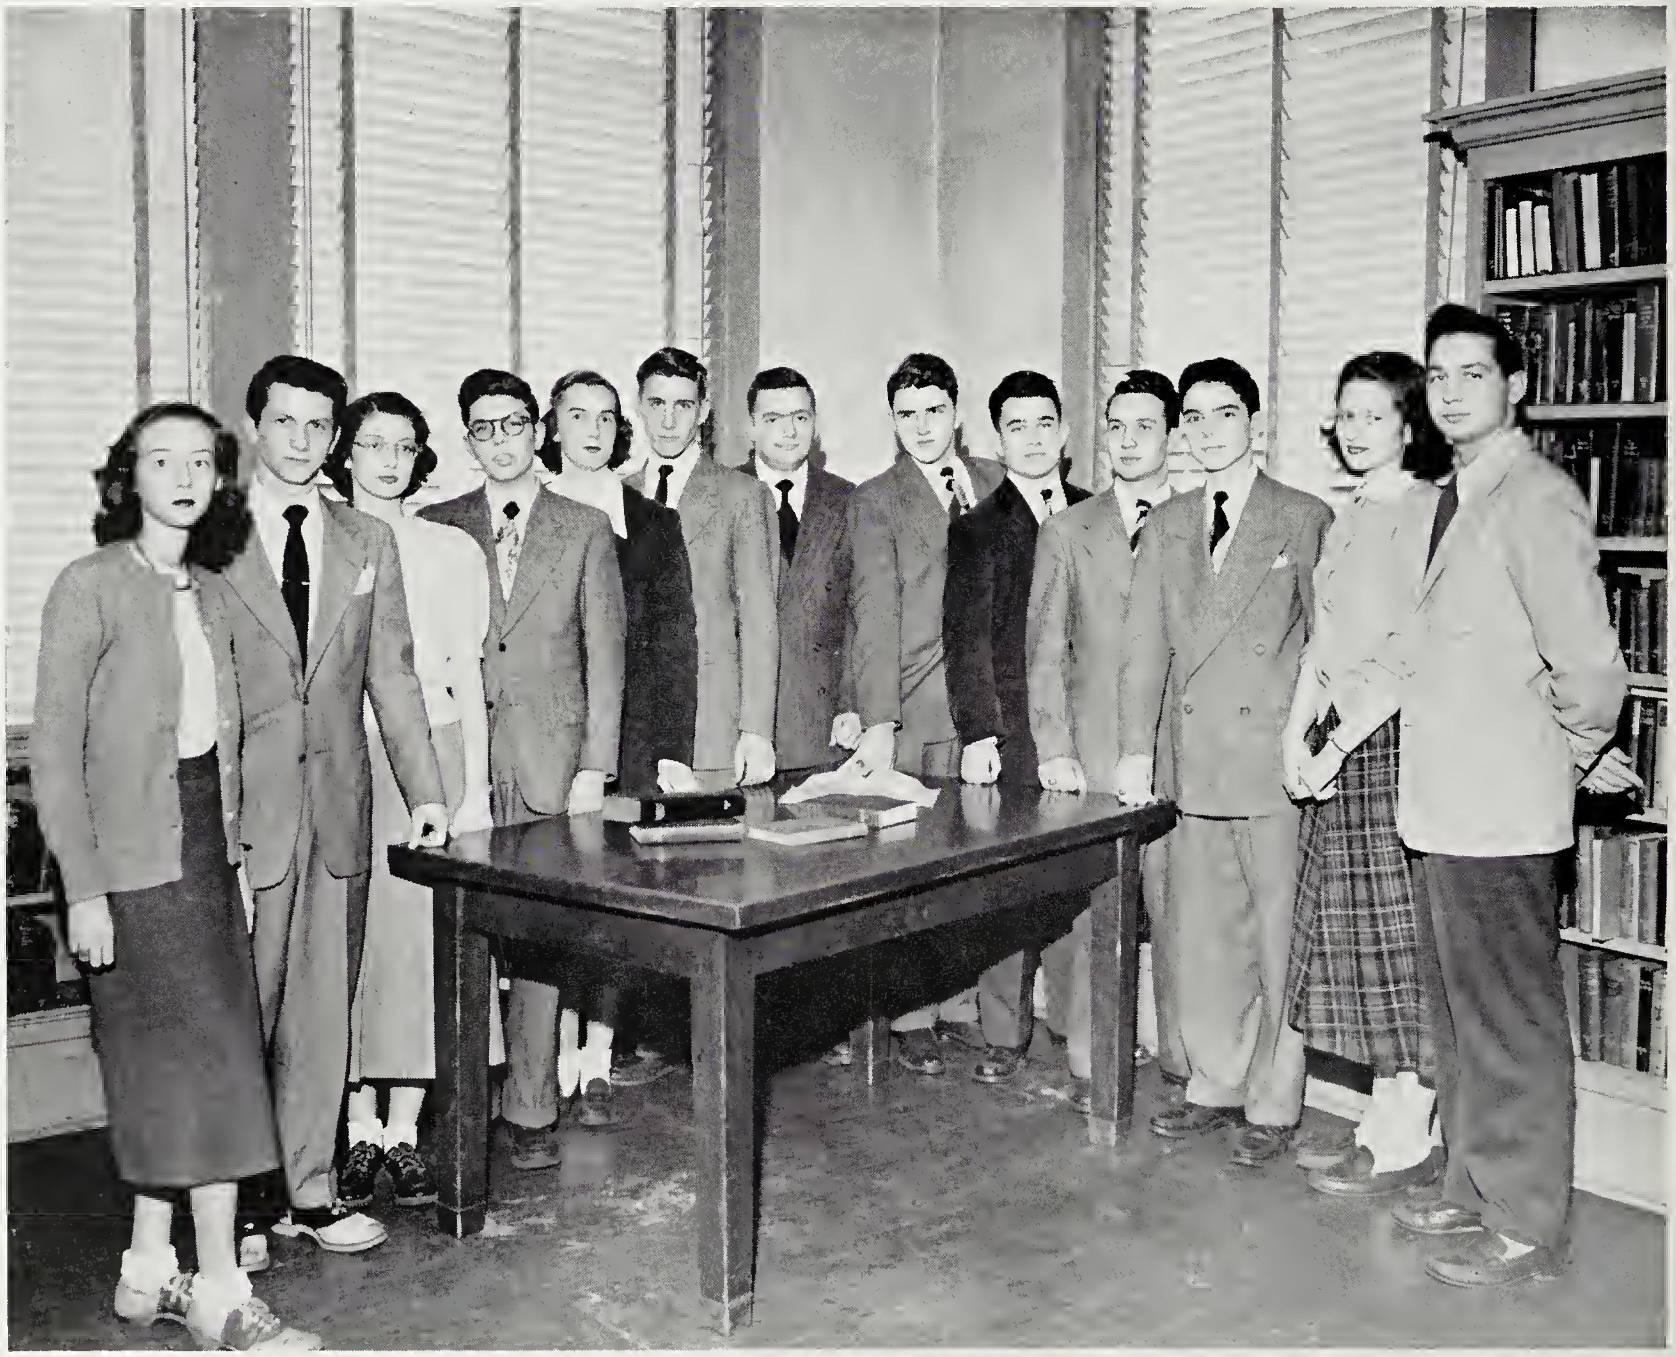
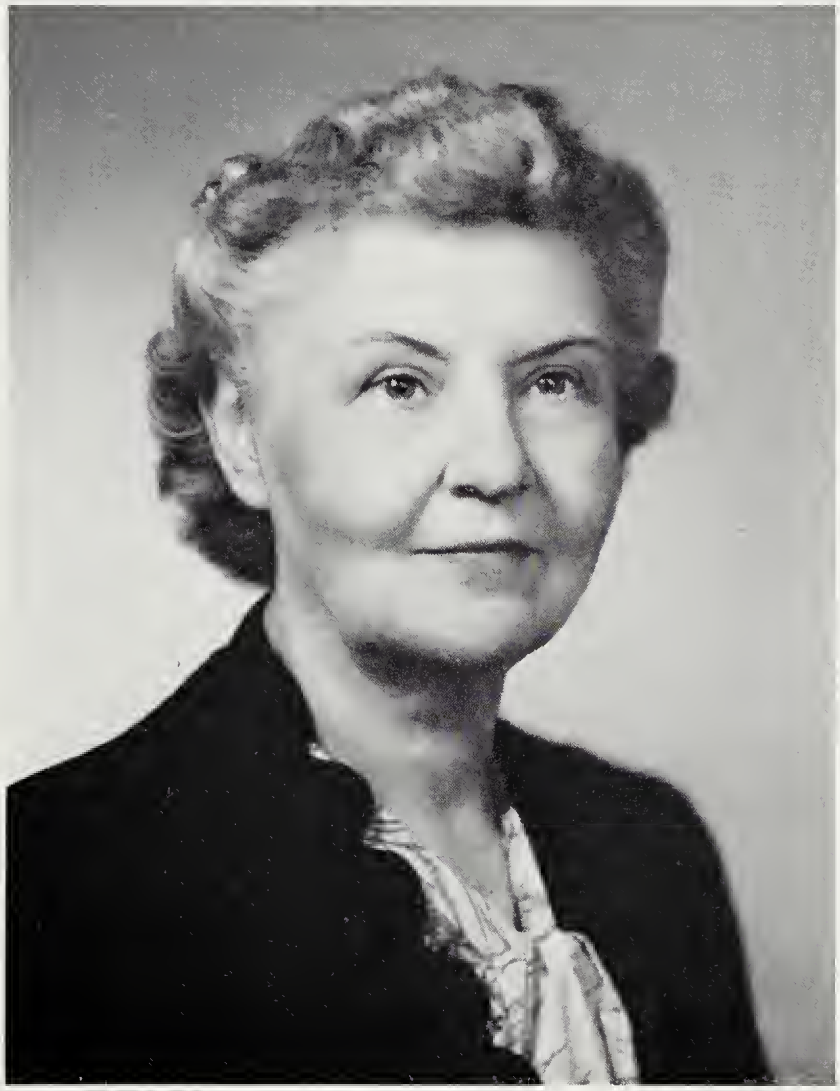
Coveted honors come to a chosen few as end of term approaches . . .



Something new was added to the list of honors which might be captured by G. W. seniors. Nominated by their homerooms, approved by school officials as well as the staff of the High School Register, eleven of the group above had their biographies published in this biographical index of outstanding high school students in America. Such qualities considered were "scholarship, leadership ability, service to school and community, personality, and probable future usefulness to society." As pictured, those included in the High School Register are Connie Diggs, Tommie Collie, Celeste Bishop, Albert Kahn, Jane Schoolfield, Preston Purdum, Raymond Knick, John Heard, Bentz Howard, Homer Bass, and Brantley Barr. These, with the last two in the row, Mary Lane Stembridge and Harry McFarling, also comprised the group from G. W. known as "Who's Who in American High Schools."



Miss Cleo Johnson

Miss Cleo Johnson passed away on February 13, 1949, as the result of a traffic accident.

Having served in the Danville School System for the past fifteen years, six of them at G. W., Miss Johnson was well known to each teacher and student. Especially well known was she to the Senior Class, having been closely associated with a group of them as homeroom teacher during their entire stay at George Washington High. Her gentle guiding spirit, her very special interest in each student, her friendly, cordial smile, has touched their lives with an enduring influence.

Is this goodbye? It could not be.
Perhaps just now they halt, my friend,
Those days that travel end on end,
Such carefree days that swiftly fly . . .
Perhaps in this it means goodbye.

Could you forget? It could not be.
For you will hold close in your heart
A memory—a shining part
Of gathered wisdom. This we deem,
That you will use—to build a dream.

Virginia Ann Perkins, captain of Grays; Berkley Keck, Joyce Copley, Maxine Kambesis, Laura Bennett, Betty McNichols, June Stephens, Bentz Howard, Willard Gatewood, Jean Bennett, Ann Hardin, Elizabeth Ann Jeffries, Barbara Owen, Marcia Brown, Homer Bass, advertising manager; June Powell, Julia Solesbee, Charlotte Preas, Preston Purdum, Evelyn Brown, Harold Wilson, June Peay, Nancy Lee Koger, Nancy Evans, Gwendolyn Russell, H. B. Fowlkes, Earline Franklin, Anne Murphy, and Buddy Barker, captain of Maroons.

With Homer Bass as Advertising Manager, this squad went out through Danville to seek ads for financial aid to the annual. Divided into teams with Buddy Barker and Virginia Ann Perkins as captains, both teams looked forward to attaining the goal set for them by their captains. Homer stands in the center, proud of his left and right wings.
